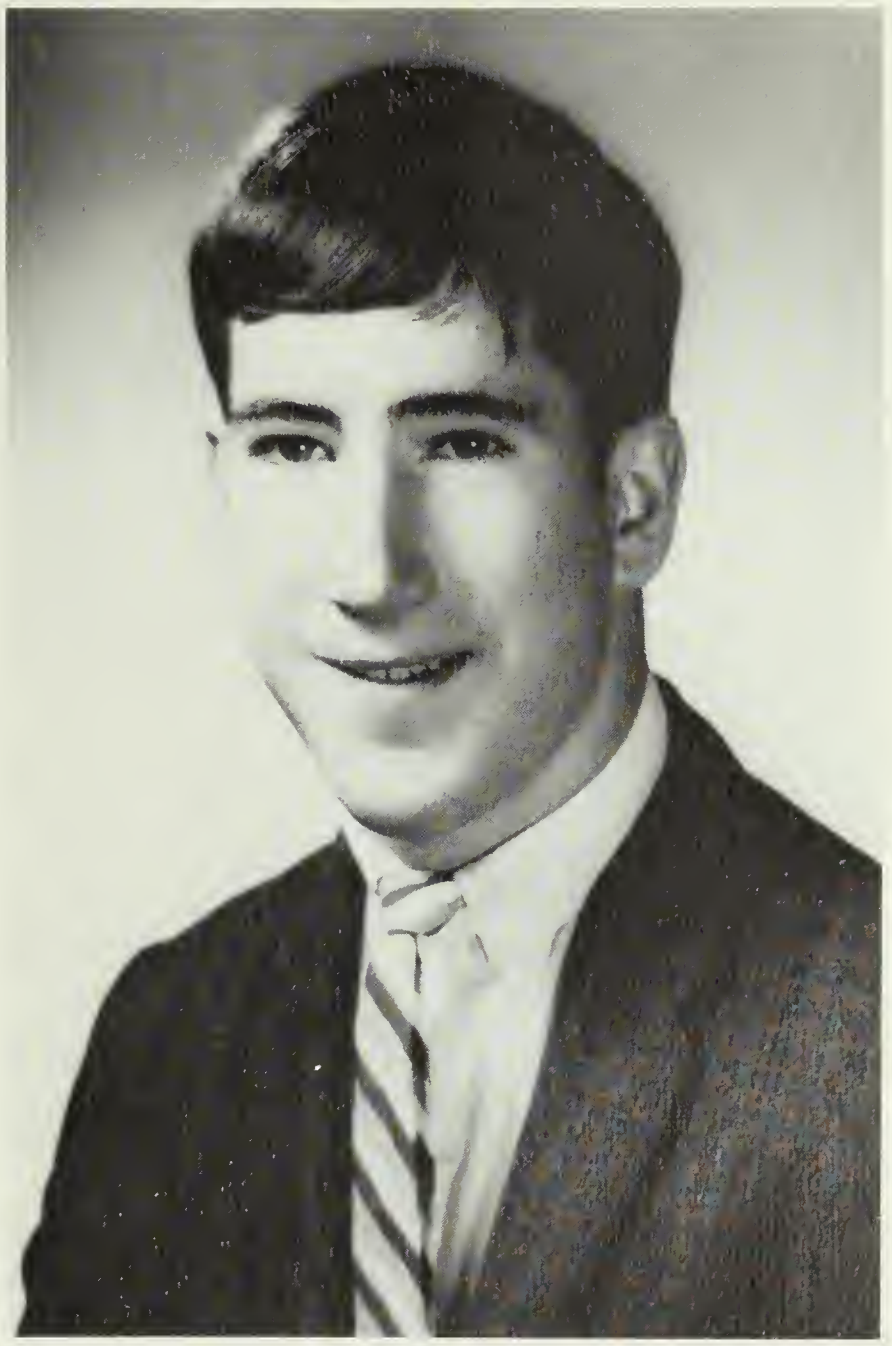
The first graduating class of Massasoit Community College, undertakes to dedicate herein the first yearbook in the history of the college.

The responsibility for activation, administration, and daily direction of a new school is indeed a challenge.

The challenge has been met admirably, and it is with sincere pleasure that the Class of 1968 dedicates its yearbook, "The Legend," to you, Dr. Musselman.

In Memoriam



WILLIAM MICHAEL TROSTEL

April 30, 1948 — September 18, 1966

Friendliness, thoughtfulness, and conscientiousness—those qualities which William Trostel possessed, gained the admiration of everyone. This memoriam is written to perpetuate his memory, and to express the highest degree of respect of his professors and his peers.

"As the first students of Massasoit Community College, it is up to you to create the tradition and history of this college." During the past two years, students have constantly received these words of encouragement and advice. With the graduation of the first class of Massasoit Community College, the foundation has been set for an ideal which was begun over a decade ago.

Interest was displayed as early as 1900 for the provision of some form of education to supplement high school. There arose the idea of a low-cost, two-year, state-supported institution. By the early 1960's, the Community College became more than an idea to the Brockton community. After due consideration, the bill was passed in December 1965 and a college was to be built in Brockton.

In March, Dean Melody moved into temporary quarters at the Sprague School in Brockton. He was without a phone, a desk, and a staff, but before long he was busy with the task of accepting the students that were to comprise the college's first graduating class. The faculty was appointed and Massasoit, under the direction of President John W. Musselman, moved to another temporary home in the Charles Frolio School in Abington.

In September of 1966, when the college opened for its first semester, 723 students enrolled as freshmen and there were 46 professors. Dean Melody became the Dean of Faculty and Dean Simmons became the Dean of Students.

The social activities of the college have grown also. Early in the fall of 1966 an election for the Student Council members was held. Those original members of the council drew up the Constitution, the Student Handbook and planned the activities of the coming year. Out of these original activities have grown the start Massasoit Day, which was held on the day preceding the Thanksgiving Recess. Among the many activities held at the second annual Massasoit Day was a series of skits, a short history of our forefather Chief Massasoit, a Student Council-Faculty basketball game and a pancake festival.

The student activities include: the semi-formal, intermural games, varsity basketball, the newspaper called "The Quill" and the yearbook called the "The Legend". The Varsity Basketball team had a very successful year with two players making the All-Star team.

Over the past two years, experience has been the key word. Students have had the experience of growing with the college and the college has grown with its students.

FOUNDED 1966

Prologue

This yearbook has been a unique experience. We have waded through many long hours, disappointments, and missed deadlines. Our understanding staff and advisors listened to each problem and each, in giving his view-points, has brought The Legend to its first publication.

We as a staff present to you in the first yearbook of MCC a memorable book. It has candids, cartoons, and formal pictures capturing every side of campus life.

As editor of The Legend, I can only say there have been many late nights spent in that little publication room working to prepare each page. In striving to prepare a unique and interesting book we have sought to give you the best; the best of our efforts and the best of our school. In your hands is the product of our labor. I sincerely hope that you will enjoy The Legend as much as we have enoyed preparing it.

Editor,

Jeannette Gilchrist

Massasoit Day . . .

November 22, 1967 was Massasoit Day at MCC. It was considered one of the most popular events of the year because so many were involved. The days activities included a skit, choral presentations, and the crowning of a princess, a queen and a chief. In the afternoon there was a basketball game: Faculty vs Student Council. Guess who won! Following the day's activities there was a mixer which gave the Thanksgiving Holiday a special touch.

Proven Successful!

Professor Gay tells of the great sachem—Massasoit.

Chosen to reign is Eloise Jacobs, Princess Massasoit; Nancy Samulski, Miss Massasoit; and John Kelly, Chief Massasoit.

Semi–Formal
1967–1968

May 20, 1967 is a memorable evening for all those who attended the semi-formal at Motel 128 with the George Graham Orchestra entertaining.

Many found the semi-formal of 1968 as memorable if not more so than the previous year. The Johnny Christy Orchestra and Bob Blasser entertained at the Ridder Country Club.

Nancy Wilbur never realized at this time she would be the next editor of the Legend.

MCC Wins Again

CAPE COD CLOSE

The sport of basketball started out impressively at Massasoit. Although the team lacked height, it more than made up for this deficient with hustle and desire. Thanks to the coaching of Tim Fitzgerald, the team was in the best of condition, and this fact alone allowed the Warrior "Hoopsters" to literally run many of its opponents off the court. During the first semester, the fine rebounding and scoring of captains Mel Mapp, John DiGiovanni, and forward Frank Smith, plus the defensive play and outside shooting of guards Danny Ryan and George Baldwin, the team lost only four games. The winning season, however, was due to a team effort and depth of the Warrior's bench. Guards Ron Bechtel and John Olson were more than equal to the task of replacing Baldwin and Ryan. When Bechtel and Olson tired there was Ron Mooney, Ralph Cluff, and Steve Osborne to take over.

With the loss of captain DiGiovanni during the second semester, the scoring and rebounding chores fell to forwards Lorrey Bianchi and Barney Ross, each of whom shouldered the responsibility well. DiGiovanni was not the only man lost, for the hustle of Bill Weaver, Bob Doyle, and Rick Markt were also missed. However, the team benefited from the rebounding of Pat Lyons and the shooting of forwards Hal Johnson and Jim Murphy. The history of Massasoit basketball got off to a great start and the future looks bright with many of this year's players returning for next year.

In February 1967, the first edition of The Quill, a monthly publication, was presented to the students. The Quill is a student publication—edited and written by the students. It deals with local news and items of interest to the student body. As the voice of the students, The Quill tries to present a true picture of activities and conflicts concerning the college.

Due to the unselfish contributions, MCC has adopted an orphan. As foster parents we will be sending a check each month to help this child lead a life of better opportunities. Our orphan will be given the chance to receive a good education foundation and also the food and clothing that is needed. In return, through pictures and letters we will gain a better understanding of the child.

Schools were originally open forum discussion groups, where a teacher posed a question and the pupils gave their opinions and supported their contentions. Things could sometimes get rather out of hand. This spirit of creativity and invention has been perpetuated in our Literary Guild.

Members bring in examples of art work and writing, many times originals, which they feel would spark an interest. They ask for help in getting over a "rough" place. In return constructive criticism from the group is given.

Growth has been constant, and next year even a larger number of those interested are expected to participate.
